

TROY TODAY

A look inside Troy University for faculty and staff

February 6, 2009

Hawkins Hall dedicated

Chancellor: Naming of building ‘one of the great honors in my lifetime’

Gov. Bob Riley officially dedicated the newest Troy University academic building in honor of Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr., in a ceremony Jan. 27 on the Troy Campus.

Some 350 people packed Jack Hawkins, Jr., Hall to witness the event.

Gov. Riley praised Dr. Hawkins for his “vision, original thought, tenacity and courage.”

“What you have done is to set a new pattern, but that would not have been possible without your leadership,” Gov. Riley said. “Today is not about past achievements, but rather we are honoring a person who took original thought and made a new university, a national university.”

Jack Hawkins, Jr., Hall, a 90,800 square-foot building, consolidates all College of Education faculty, staff and classes into one facility. It is the building dedicated to teacher preparation constructed on a public university campus in Alabama since 1969.

More than 350 people attended the dedication ceremony officially opening Jack Hawkins, Jr., Hall, which houses Troy University’s College of Education Jan. 27.

Hawkins, appointed Chancellor of the Troy State University System in 1989, steered the consolidation of campuses in Montgomery, Troy, Dothan, and Phenix City into a singly accredited institution, pioneered the University’s internationalization and led the institution to both the

See HAWKINS, Page 3

SACS visits begin at Global Campus sites

On-site review of Troy University campuses has begun as a part of the University’s reaffirmation of accreditation process by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).

Teams of college professors and administrators began visits to Global Campus international sites on Monday.

Monday’s visits included TROY’s partner university location in Malaysia, followed by visits to teaching sites in Ho Chi Minh City and Hanoi.

Review of Global Campus sites will continue on Feb. 16 with visits to sites at Ft. Benning and Ft. Walton Beach, and on March 2 with visits to sites in Ft. Carson, CO, and Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Arizona,

The team will begin review of TROY’s Alabama campuses

April 6-10 with visits to the Montgomery, Phenix City and Dothan campuses.

The on-site review process will conclude with a visit to the Troy Campus, April 20-23.

The visits will include meetings with members of the faculty, administration, students and alumni, according to Dr. John Dew, associate vice chancellor
See SACS, Page 2

Inside Today

- TROY News 2
- TROY People 5
- Around TROY 8

We welcome your input and submissions at aellis@troy.edu

Information Technology unveils Helpdesk improvements

By adding a unique blend of new technology and a desire to serve others more efficiently, Troy University's Office of Information Technology has made efforts to improve the university's IT Helpdesk.

The university's Information Technology has published a new online IT Helpdesk tool. This new solution will enhance end-user support and service offerings, enabling TROY students, staff, and faculty to receive better technical support and outstanding customer service.

Angel Johnson, End-User Support Director (IT Department), is excited about the changes.

"I think the online students will especially benefit from the improvements. Online students and students that do not have an IT support staff at their location can now log-in and check the status of their existing service request and have access to a self-knowledge base anywhere and anytime," said Johnson.

A major highlight of the implementation is the new web-based help desk solution. There are now two entry points into the technology support process: web and phone.

Johnson said that the new help desk will allow the appropriate IT staff member to help with a problem immediately. "Students will be routed directly to the support desk that is responsible for those duties," said Johnson. "The new helpdesk will also allow the IT staff to offer more complete online tools for our end-users and give the user more knowledge regarding their call and request."

Johnson said that all IT departments have received the updates to their sites.

— By William Ashley

TROY Shield Society Gala – The inaugural TROY Shield Society gala and induction ceremony was held Jan. 30-31 with 128 founding members being inducted during a special ceremony in the Claudia Crosby Theater. The TROY Shield Society represents those who have chosen to support the work of the Troy University Foundation through bequests, trusts or other deferred gifts. Above, founding members enjoy a gala dinner in the Trojan Center Ballrooms on Jan. 30. Top left, founding TROY Shield Society members enjoy a reception following induction ceremonies on Jan. 31. Bottom left, Mrs. Ann Williams, founding member and a member of the Planned Giving Council, and Dr. Jean Laliberte, associate vice chancellor for development, cut a cake during a reception on Jan. 31.

SACS

Continued from Page 1
for Institutional Research, Planning and Effectiveness.

"The team will visit to ensure that we are in compliance with requirements of the federal government, such as faculty qualifications, adequate support offered to students and issues such as that," Dr. Dew said. "They also will review to ensure that we are in good shape from a financial standpoint. They will also spend time reviewing and discussing with us our provisions for our Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP)."

The QEP is a component of the accreditation process that reflects TROY's commitment to improving the quality of student learning.

Hawkins

Continued from Page 1

doctorate degree level and to Division I athletics.

Dr. Hawkins called the naming of the building “one of the great honors of my lifetime”

Quoting Proverbs, Hawkins thanked the University’s Board of Trustees.

“Without vision, the people perish. I want to thank our board of trustees because they have consistently challenged to us to think globally, act locally and always maintain focus on the student and serving that student. That is our mission,” he said. “We believe this beautiful building will help us achieve that mission and we are committed to that mission.”

“I am extraordinarily proud that this is the first new building dedicated to a college of education in the state of Alabama in more than four decades. I think this sets the standard for the rest of this state,” he said. “Isn’t it exciting to believe the lives shaped within these walls will ultimately shape the future of Alabama and the future of Alabama’s children?”

The Troy University Board of Trustees voted in July 2007 to name the building in his honor, making it the third such building in Alabama to share his name. The Alabama Institute for the Deaf and Blind named the “Jack and Janice Hawkins Chapel” in his honor, and the “Hawkins-Adams-Long Hall of Honor” shares his name with former Chancellor Ralph Wyatt Adams and past Director of Bands Dr. Johnny M. Long.

In addition to Governor Riley’s dedica-

Troy University First Lady Janice Hawkins, Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr. and Gov. Bob Riley officially declare Jack Hawkins, Jr., Hall open during a ceremony Tuesday dedicating the state’s newest building dedicated to a college of education.

tory address, Dr. Joe Morton, state superintendent of education, provided remarks. Other speakers included: Dr. Hawkins; Troy Mayor Jimmy Lunsford; Dr. R. Douglas Hawkins, President Pro-Tem, Board of Trustees; Mr. Lamar P. Higgins, Board of Trustees; Dr. Ed Roach, Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost; Dr. John Schmidt, Senior Vice Chancellor; Dr. Doug Patterson, Senior Vice Chancellor (retired); Dr. Lance Tatum, Dean, College of Education; and, Mr. Bob Howell, master of ceremonies.

The building includes 12 classrooms, two technology teaching laboratories, three counseling laboratories, three conference rooms, and a faculty work room. Two of the 12 classrooms are interactive video conference classrooms. The building’s atrium houses the Alabama Educational Leadership Hall of Fame.

“We planned very carefully to try to provide what is currently being used at universities and K-through-12 settings so that our students – both those that will be teaching and those that will be working in support areas – will have access to the material while they’re in school,” said Dr. Lance Tatum, dean of the College of Education.

Montgomery Campus honored – MAX Credit Union President and CEO Greg McClellan, right, presents the 2009 Max Community Achievement Award to Troy University Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr., center, and Montgomery Campus Vice Chancellor Ray White. The award recognizes organizations and individuals who make the River Region a better place to live, work and worship. TROY’s Montgomery Campus was honored for its efforts in bringing revitalization to the downtown area of Montgomery. The award was presented on Jan. 29, during the sixth annual MAX Community Reception.

Chancellor's Fellows

Five employees selected for leadership development program

Troy University Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr. has announced the selection of five faculty and staff members to participate in the 2009 Chancellor's Fellows Program.

Selected were: Dr. Andrew Creamer, chair of the Department of Psychology, Counseling and Foundations of Education; Joseph Houghton, Florida Director for the Southeast Region of TROY's Global Campus; Marcus Paramore, director of government relations; Dr. Candice Howard-Shaughnessy, assistant professor and interim chair of the Department of Kinesiology and Health Promotion; and, Greg Skaggs, assistant professor in the Department of Art and Design.

The program is directed by Dr. John Kline, distinguished professor of leadership and director of TROY's Institute for Leadership Development. The fellows were nominated by TROY deans, directors or vice chancellors and selected by the Chancellor to participate in the program.

"The Chancellor's Faculty and Staff Fellowship Program enables qualified full-time faculty and staff to develop increased knowledge and understanding of the programs and operations of Troy University," Dr. Kline said. "Participants are selected based on their leadership potential and past service to the University."

The experience spans the spring and summer academic semesters during which the Fellows will have the opportunity to visit other campuses, benefit from briefings and meetings with senior University officials and take part in several field trips and visits with state education officials, business leaders and state government officials, according to Kline. Each fellow is mentored by a member of the University's senior administration.

Troy University Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr. recently announced the selection of five TROY employees for the 2009 Chancellor's Fellows Program. Pictured from left to right are: Dr. John Kline, distinguished professor of leadership and director of the University's Institute for Leadership Development; Marcus Paramore, director of government relations; Chancellor Hawkins; Dr. Candice Howard-Shaughnessy, assistant professor and interim chair of the Department of Kinesiology and Health Promotion; Jay Houghton, Florida Director for the Southeast Region of Global Campus; Greg Skaggs, assistant professor in the Department of Art and Design; and, Dr. Andy Creamer, chair of the Department of Psychology, Counseling and Foundations of Education.

The fellows recently completed the first of two weeks of intensive executive leadership training, which included sessions with Chancellor Hawkins, Dr. Ed Roach, executive vice chancellor and provost, Dr. John Dew, associate vice chancellor for Institutional Research, Planning and Effectiveness, Brooke Strickland, associate director of human resources, Sichan Siv, TROY's ambassador in residence, Dr. Hank Findley, chair of business programs, and Dr. Kline.

Thank-you notes

I would like to thank you for the flower gift card that was sent on the behalf of my father – Golden Carter. Thanks for all the support, thoughts and prayers that were shown to us at a very difficult time in our lives.

I will always remember the kindness from the Troy University Family.

Donna C. Riley
Information Technology

•••

Thank you so much for the picture frame. We love it. We appreciate your thoughts at such a special time in our lives.

Love and God bless,
Daniel and Hannah Walker

Activities & achievements

William Heisler, associate professor of human resources in the Atlantic Region, was a guest columnist in the January 2009 issue of The Oyster Pointer, a monthly business publication in Newport News, VA. His column, "Performance Appraisal: It's not the form that's important – It's the relationship," stressed the importance of developing good relationships with subordinates to achieve positive effects from the performance appraisal process.

...

Dr. Jonathan Harrington, associate professor of international relations, has been chosen as a finalist for a major national publishing industry award, The Books for a Better Life Award, sponsored by the New York Chapter of the MS Society for his recently published book, The Climate Diet (2008). Past nominees include Suze Orman, Thomas Friedman, Tim Russert, Arianna Huffington, Ellen Burstyn and Dr. Mehmet Oz (Dr. Oz). The winners will be announced Feb. 23 at an awards ceremony in Manhattan, to be hosted by Meredith Vieira, co-anchor of NBC's Today.

...

Jo Anne Bryant, a retired English professor and department chair now serving as an adjunct on the Montgomery Campus, has been elected to serve another three-year term as the Alabama Reading Association's (ARA) State Coordinator. The State Coordinator is the liaison for ARA, International Reading Association (IRA) and local councils. She attended the 26th Southeast IRA Conference in Nashville, TN, Dec. 7-10, representing ARA at a sessions for state leaders.

...

Dr. Greg Dawson, assistant professor of counseling and psychology at the Orlando Site, and Dr. Carol Lewis, assistant professor of counseling and psychology at the Pensacola Site, were published in the American Counseling Association's 2008 edition of the Encyclopedia of Counseling.

Drs. Dawson and Lewis also recently presented at the American Mental Health Counselors Association in San Diego, CA. The title of the presentation was "Mental Health Counselors in Medical Settings."

...

Dr. Charles E. Mitchell, assistant professor of public administration in the Southeastern Region, has received notification that his legal brief, "Retaliation Lawsuit Held Applicable for Federal Employees Under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act: A Victory for Older Federal Employees (The Supreme Court's decision in Gomez-Perez v Potter, Postmaster General)," has been accepted for publication in an upcoming issue of the Review of Public Personnel Administration. Additionally, Dr. Mitchell presented a paper entitled "Presidential Recess Appointments:

Zingaras return from China trip – Dr. James and Ginger Zingara, faculty members in the John M. Long School of Music, present Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr. with a tapestry sent by the students of Sichuan Conservatory of Music. The Zingaras recently returned from Chengdu, People's Republic of China, where they performed and taught at the Conservatory. During the six-day visit, Mrs. Zingara taught conducting classes to instrumental and vocal students, as well as collaborating with the Conservatory's conducting faculty. Dr. Zingara presented five master classes and taught private lessons to the Conservatory's 27 trumpet students. In addition, Dr. Zingara performed a full recital of American music. The recital was broadcast on local Chengdu television, a market of over 11 million people. The visit was made possible through an invitation by Mr. Liu Shuang, a trumpet instructor at the Sichuan Conservatory and a former graduate of Troy University's 1-2-1 program.

Circumventing Constitutional Intent?" at the Southeastern Conference for Public Administration in Orlando, FL, in September 2008 and served as a panel moderator at the College of Art and Sciences Public Policy Conference held
See ACHIEVEMENTS, Page 6

TROY faculty member to serve as 'light' for literacy

Troy University faculty member Jo Anne Bryant will let her light shine in 2009 by working to raise funds to support literacy education.

Bryant, a retired English professor and department chair now working part time for the Montgomery Campus, has been selected to serve as one of the International Reading Association's "1,000 Lights of Literacy."

Bryant is one of 1,000 individuals and groups who will work to raise $1,000 each by fall, 2009. Interest generated by the $1 million endowment will fund grants of $10,000 or more for teachers in the literacy field.

Bryant said it is an honor to have been chosen as one of 1,000 "lights" worldwide.

"Classroom teacher grants right now are going to be critically needed because dollars are tight for everyone," she said.

Bryant is a resident of Prattville. She has been involved in the International Reading Association for more than 25 years and served three elected terms as state coordinator of the Alabama Reading Association. She has also been a member and chair of several international committees and currently serves on the International Reading Association's Exemplary Reading Program Award committee.

Bryant said she has been an advocate for reading education since college.

"I think that all of us in education are in it to make a difference," Bryant said. "Reading is so critical for every stage of life. We need to help people become independent learners. That's our goal."

For more information on how to make a tax deductible contribution to "1,000 Lights of Literacy," contact Bryant at jbryant@troy.edu.

Achievements

Continued from Page 5
in Destin, FL, Nov. 2-4.

...

John M. Long School of Music faculty members Dr. James Zingara, trumpet, and Dr. Hui-Ting Yang, piano, have been invited to perform at the 30th Regional Conference of the Southern Chapter of the College Music Society. They will perform "For the Mark of Time," a work for solo trumpet/flugelhorn and piano by retired Troy University Associate Professor Carl Vollrath. The concert will be held on the campus of the University of Central Florida, Feb. 28.

...

Dr. Diane Orlofsky, professor of music, and Dr. Mark Walker, associate professor of music, presided over several sessions at the recent Alabama Music Educator's Conference held on the campus of the University of Alabama, Jan. 21-24.

Dr. Orlofsky serves as the state research chair for AMEA, and Dr. Walker serves as the Higher Education Division chair.

...

Dr. Timothy Phillips, assistant professor of clarinet, organized a series of higher education recitals at the Alabama Music Educators Conference in Tuscaloosa over Jan. 22-24. He performed on one of these recitals in a woodwind quintet with professors from four other universities throughout Alabama.

...

Joseph H. Houghton, Florida Director for TROY's Southeast Region of Global Campus, has been appointed to serve on the Florida Department of Education's Accreditation Review Committee.

The Accreditation Review Committee is under the auspices of the Commission for Independent Education. This commission has statutory responsibilities in matters relating to nonpublic, postsecondary, educational institutions.

...

Dr. Barry Davidson, associate professor in the Department of Psychology, Counseling and Foundations of Education, recently had his book Reflections on Culture and Cultural Wars, co-authored by James J. Van Patten of Florida Atlantic University and David S. Snelgrove of the University of Oklahoma, Edmond, published by Anu Books.

The book examines the meaning of the diverse cultural conditions in the United States and their impacts on formal education.

In addition, Dr. Davidson recently co-authored the article "A Motivating Instructor" with TROY alumnus Hamid Hassan, now with International Islamic University in Islamabad, Pakistan, and Robert L. Marshall of Western Illinois University. The article appeared in the National Forum of Educational Administration and Supervision Journal, Vol. 26, No. 2, 2009-2010.

...

Drs. Larry Blocher, Carla Gallahan and Ralph Ford, of the John M. Long School of Music, recently served as guest conductors at the 16th annual Kansas State University Concert Band Clinic. More than 550 students were selected to participate in this year's clinic.

...

Robert W. Smith, coordinator of the Music Industry program, recently served as a guest conductor for the 2009 All-Escambia County Instrumental Gala held at Pensacola High School. Smith directed the Middle School Honors Band.

...

Larry Percy, associate professor of art and design, has had his artwork "Kergyma Series: Journeys to Holy Ghost Canyon XV/Arch I" chosen for second place in three-dimensional artwork in the Baker Arts Center's 11th National Juried Art Exhibit. The exhibit runs through Feb. 21 at the center in Liberal, KS. Percy was among 48 artists from 19 states to be selected for the exhibit.

Bring on the brass

11th annual symposium to conclude with Feb. 21 concert

Troy University's John M. Long School of Music, the College of Communication and Fine Arts and the Troy Arts Council will present its eleventh annual Brass Symposium Concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21 in the Claudia Crosby Theatre.

"This concert is the culmination of the activities involved with the Troy University Brass Symposium which is a full day of clinics for middle school, high school and college-level students," said Dr. James Zingara, a professor of trumpet and coordinator of the symposium.

The evening program will feature performances by Dr. Zingara, Dr. Doug Bristol, professor of trombone at Alabama State University, Mr. Jeff Leenhouts, principal hornist of the Pensacola and Mobile Symphonies and Mr. Michael Keeley, adjunct instructor of trumpet at Troy University. In addition, the TROY Trumpet Ensembles I and II, the Southeast

Alabama Brass Company, the Troy Symphony Brass Quintet and several honors ensembles made up of area high school students will perform.

"The event will offer the ceremony, scope and variety of a typical band concert and will conclude with a spectacular mass finale comprised of more than one hundred performers," Dr. Zingara said.

Admission to this concert is free and open to the public. Please call 670-3323 for more information.

McPherson-Mitchell Lecture to feature noted medical historian

One of the nation's leading medical historians will be the guest speaker at the sixth annual McPherson-Mitchell Lecture in Southern History on Feb. 24 at Troy University. The lecture will begin at 5 p.m. in the Claudia Crosby Theater on the Troy Campus.

Dr. Margaret Humphreys, the Josiah Charles Trent Professor in the History of Medicine and Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine of Duke University, will be the guest speaker for the lecture, which is sponsored by the University's Department of History and the TROY Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta international history honor society.

The McPherson-Mitchell lecture series is held in honor of Norma Mitchell and Milton McPherson, retired Troy University history professors who together gave 50 years of service to the university. McPherson served on the TROY faculty from 1968 until 1989, while Dr. Mitchell was a faculty member from 1970 until 1999.

Dr. Humphreys will speak on "The South's Secret Weapons: Disease, Environment and the Civil War."

A specialist in the history of science and medicine, Dr. Humphreys has focused her research and publications primarily on infectious disease in the U.S. and the American south.

Dr. Humphreys has published three books – "Yellow Fever and the South," "Malaria: Poverty, Race and Public Health in the United States," and "Intensely Human: The Health of Black Soldiers in the American Civil War." She is presently working on the book, "The Civil War and American Medicine," to be published by Johns Hopkins Press.

Dr. Karen Ross, assistant professor in the Department of History, said Dr. Humphreys brings a broad appeal to the lecture.

"We are thrilled to have Dr. Humphreys as our speaker for the McPherson-Mitchell lecture," Dr. Ross said. "She is not only one of the most respected in the field of the history of medicine, but she also specializes in the areas of Southern history, the Civil War and health issues related to race."

The lecture is open to the public and is free of charge.

TROY's Atlanta Site, Barnes & Noble to host Read-in events

Troy University's Atlanta Site and Barnes & Noble are joining forces to host three events this month aimed at fostering literacy and black literary culture.

The African American Read-In events will be held on Feb. 13, 18 and 27, each beginning at 3:30 p.m., at the Barnes & Noble in Sandy Springs, GA, and will feature readings from highly acclaimed picture books by African American authors.

The African American Read-In is associated with a national program initiated by the Black Caucus of the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE).

In addition to readings by Dr. Daneell Edwards, elementary education coordinator at Troy University's Atlanta Site, students from the University's English-as-a-Second-Language program will perform a "Readers Theatre."

"The African American Read-In event is a great way to provide the TROY community and the local community an opportunity to broaden their knowledge of the literary contributions of renowned African American authors," Dr. Edwards said.

AROUND TROY

Book signing

Rosa Parks Museum event to feature early Civil Rights contributor Claudette Colvin

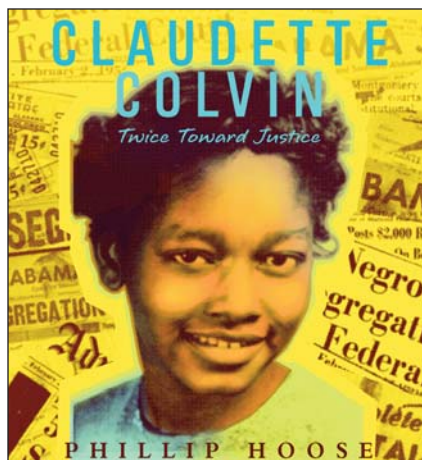

Troy University's Rosa Parks Museum will host a book signing on Feb. 10 for National Book Award finalist Phillip Hoose, author of "Claudette Colvin: Twice Toward Justice."

Hoose will be joined during the event by Colvin, a crucial but often lesser known figure of the Montgomery civil rights movement.

The free event begins at 7 p.m. in the museum auditorium.

Hoose is the author of several books for young readers, including the National Book Award finalist "We Were There, Too!: Young People in U.S. History" and "The Race to Save the Lord God Bird," winner of the Boston Globe-Horn Book Award for Nonfiction.

His latest work introduces readers to Colvin, who was arrested as a teenager on March 2, 1955 for refusing to give up her seat on a Montgomery bus to a white passenger—nine months before Author Phillip Hoose will sign his book "Claudette Colvin: Twice Toward Justice" on Feb. 10 at the Rosa Parks Library and Museum. Colvin, an early contributor to the Civil Rights Movement in Montgomery, will join Hoose for the event.

Rosa Parks was similarly arrested.

A year later Colvin would serve as a key plaintiff in Browder v. Gayle, the landmark case that helped strike down the segregation laws of Montgomery.

Based on extensive interviews with Colvin and many others, Hoose presents the first in-depth account of this important early civil rights contributor.

"More than any story I know, Claudette Colvin's life story shows how history is made up of objective facts and personal truths, braided together," Hoose said. "In this case, a girl raised in poverty by a strong, loving family twice risked her personal safety—probably her life—to gain justice for her people. Claudette is a wise woman who, when she was a smart, angry teenager, made contributions to human rights far too important ever to be forgotten."

"Claudette Colvin: Twice Toward Justice" is published by Farrar, Straus and Giroux—for more information, or to arrange an interview with Hoose, contact publicity manager Jennifer Doerr at (212) 206-5367 or at jennifer.doerr@fsgbooks.com.

Event provides artwork pleasing to the eye and stomach

Troy University faculty will put their culinary and artistic skills to test in the College of Communication and Fine Arts' fourth annual Edible Arts.

The event is from 7 p.m. – 8:30 p.m., Feb. 10, at the Studio in downtown Troy and benefits the Troy Arts Council. Tickets, which may be purchased at the Johnson Center for the Arts or at the University's Department of Art and Design in Malone Hall, are $15 for singles and $25 for couples.

"The College wanted Edible Arts to be a fundraising event for the Troy Arts Council because the arts council has been so generous in helping to fund several of our events at the University and also sponsor many artistic performances for the people of Troy and Pike County," said Dean Maryjo Cochran. "We believe the Edible Art is a valuable project to help promote the good works of the Troy Arts Council."

Cochran said the artwork will be judged by both patrons, who will be given five "gold coins" to use in voting, and by a celebrity panel. Once the awards have been made, the art becomes edible.

In addition to ticketed guests getting to "dig in" to art, live entertainment will be provided by TROY music professor Ray Smith and the University Jazz Ensemble. Wine and beer is also included in the ticket price.

"It's a surprise just how much fun this event really is," said Pam Allen, associate professor of fine art and one of the event's coordinators. "Every year, it's brand new and it's not every day that one gets to see art and then tear into it."

The Studio is located on East Walnut Street, across from the Johnson Center for the Arts. For more information, contact Allen at 334-670-3808.

Lori Johnson garnered 2007's first place prize with her Edible Art entry "The Pinta Sails to America" that featured pretzels as its main ingredient. Edible Art, organized by Troy University's College of Communication and Fine Arts, is slated for Feb. 10 at The Studio in downtown Troy.