A Note from Me to You

let me tell you something about life-it's not fun a lot of the time.
you didn't get the job you wanted.
you lost something important to you.
you performed just under their expectations.
everything goes to hell.
your vision is clouded.
you're seeing red.
you were so close-
you don't want to live for that fleeting moment.
but when you can't feel your face standing out in the cold with two of the people you value most staring at the moon fading into the sky shrouded by mangled branches from the tree in your yard as the streetlights say hello you're reminded of why you're alive.
and you feel okay.
