Dr. Robert Jones discusses new concentration in Substance Abuse Counseling with education student, Stacey Driver of Blakely, GA.

Substance Abuse Degree Option

TSUD will offer a new concentration in Substance Abuse Counseling within the M.S. degree in counseling and psychology. TSUD, which serves the tri-state areas of southeast Alabama, southwest Georgia, and northwest Florida, is uniquely positioned to develop a concentration in substance abuse counseling that would meet the educational and professional needs of a large number of human service employees in the region, attract graduates into an ever expanding field, and function as a informational conduit for professionals in other fields about substance abuse and addiction.

Substance abuse and addiction constitute some of the greatest problems facing the nation today.

Human service workers must daily deal with people who directly or indirectly are being negatively affected, causing the need for supervision and/or assistance. Dr. Robert Jones of TSUD states, "Substance abuse is a major social problem, and no matter who a counselor is working with, a background in substance abuse will be essential. This option will therefore better qualify our students for the current demands of the profession."

There are excellent job opportunities in the field of substance abuse. The salary range for an alcoholism counselor is $19,650 - $30,000. Findings from the National Association of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselors' Education and Research Foundation reveal that counselors with a master's or higher degree averaged $33,460 and that a combination of higher education and professional credentials, not simply years of experience, has the greatest impact on earnings.

In keeping with the policy of Troy State University at Dothan to serve the residents of southeast Alabama, southwest Georgia, and the Florida Panhandle, it is anticipated that some graduates of the M.S. degree in counseling with a concentration in substance abuse will desire to be certified in each of the three states. As each state has its own certification requirements, a goal of substance abuse concentration will be to provide the basics which will allow them to become certified in the state of their choice. Concentration courses will be offered Summer Quarter 1995.

For further information, contact Dr. Robert Jones at (334) 983-6556, ext. 351.

Tuskegee Professor to Speak

The History and Social Science Club at TSUD is proud to announce its guest speaker for the 1995 Spring Quarter will be Dr. Frank Toland of Tuskegee University. Dr. Toland, a speaker for the Alabama Humanities Foundation (AHF), traces the history of race relations and examines its effect on American democracy in his presentation "Race Relations and the Challenge to Democracy." Dr. Lorance speaks to Kiwanians

Dr. Anne Lorance spoke recently to the Dothan Kiwanis Club about issues concerning child care and child care training. During her presentation she emphasized the importance of being selective when acquiring child care services. She said that it is important to observe the behavior, not only of the children in a facility, but the attitude, behavior, and professionalism of the child care staff. She said, "To receive high-quality child care, one would probably pay a higher cost for the service."

Joining Dr. Lorance for the Kiwanis presentation was Ms. Nancy Mitta, director of the Child Care Development Center at Southeast Alabama Medical Center. The presentation was held in conjunction with "Week of the Young Child" activities. The main focus of the Dothan Kiwanis Club is "Children - Priority One."

Oldest Member passes away

The "beat" of the TSUD Community Band will never be the same. In the early morning hours of April 7, Mr. Lloyd Cherry passed away in his sleep. Cherry was 85 and had been the bass drummer for the TSUD Community Band since 1990. "We will all miss Mr. Cherry," said Tony Whetstone, director of the TSUD Community Band. "Band rehearsals have been different without him. He very seldom missed practice, and he never missed a performance with the band," Whetstone added.

Cherry's musical interest began early in his life when his mother gave him piano lessons. He was not a piano man. In an article published in July 1991, Cherry told the newspaper reporter, "I had six piano lessons and I got a whipping before each one before my momma finally gave up." Drums were his interest.

At the age of 12, Cherry acquired an old drum set and would practice by playing along with the music on the family phonograph. His first paying job at age 12 was at the Palace Theater on Main Street, where he played with the silent movies each afternoon and on Saturdays. At the age of 16, he joined the 144 Artillery National Guard Band and played about 12 years.

He graduated high school in 1929 and went to the University of Alabama, where he played in the Million Dollar Band under Captain Turner. His parents became sick during the Depression and he came back to Dothan to help them. In 1930, he travelled with the National Guard Band to Washington, D.C. and played for President Hoover.

Marrying in 1935, he realized the music profession wasn't paying too well and began selling paper supplies for Jackson Paper Company. He was drafted during World War II and at that point got rid of his instruments and fought for his country. Once he returned home, he purchased a vibraphone (keyboard instrument similar to a xylophone) and played for weddings and churches. He was a member of the First Baptist Church Orchestra until the orchestra dissolved. Cherry also was a member of the Wiregrass Civic Band during the 1970's and 80's.

"He was our oldest member in the TSUD Community Band, and it was always a pleasure to see him play the bass drum. There was so much history and experience that he brought to rehearsal and to the members that would sit and talk with him," said Whetstone. He always had something pleasant to say. "I remember him kidding around with the members one night when I was passing out their certificates at the end of a quarter. He said that he suspected he was the oldest person to get college credit for playing with a band." "Mr. Cherry was truly an inspiration to me and the members of the community band, and he will be missed tremendously," added Whetstone.

Library News

by Frank Walker, director of Library Services

As you are aware, higher education in Alabama is facing some lean times. University and college libraries, being a large portion of university budgets, are usually the first to have their funding cut. We at TSUD are fortunate that the Library has not had to cut its budget more than other departments or schools of the University. At a recent NAAL meeting, it was pointed out that NAAL members have canceled over $1,000,000.00 in serials subscriptions.

While it is too early to determine the impact of the cancellations, interlibrary loan will certainly be affected. Interlibrary loan has been an effective provider of needed resources as the following indicates. In the FY 1985-86 interlibrary loan transactions within NAAL totaled 9,401. In FY 1993-94, interlibrary loans totaled 58,824, over six times the volume of 85-86. Interlibrary loans are not restricted to NAAL members. NAAL members in FY 1986-87 loaned 3,929 items to public libraries while borrowing only 521. In FY 1993-94, NAAL members loaned 7,200 items to public libraries while borrowing 848.

Obviously resource sharing works in Alabama. One outcome of serial cancellations may be that Alabama will not have a single subscription in paper format for needed titles. NAAL is addressing that issue by cooperative cancellations and by exploring the possibility of electronic journal subscriptions.

The TSUD Library too has had to cancel subscriptions. Subscription costs continue to rise faster than the serial budget. Decisions as to what to cancel are based on the use of the journal and the advice of faculty.

News from Troy...

Budget concerns put musical on hold

Growing concerns over future funding levels from the state have prompted Troy State University to cancel its 1995 and 1996 Summer Musical Theatre productions. Any decision to resume the summer musicals in 1997 will depend on whether funding returns to the level appropriated for fiscal year 1995 or increases above that amount.

The cancellation of the 1995 summer musical will allow TSU to reallocate funds to more essential areas as a prudent planning measure, while the money planned for the 1996 summer musical will be eliminated from the budget to help offset the expected 12 percent funding cut to Alabama's public four-year colleges.

The decision means that the 1995 Summer Musical Theatre production of "Annie Warbucks" scheduled for July 10 and 11 in Troy and July 14 at Montgomery's Davis Theatre has been canceled.

The university will continue spring musical productions, but next spring's production will not appear at the Davis Theatre. This spring's production of "The Will Rogers Follies" runs May 11 and 12 in Troy and May 19 at the Davis Theatre in Montgomery.
