

Vacancies Provided and Chinese Promoted by CIT at Local Career Fair

On Oct. 1st, 2015, at Troy Study Abroad Fair, CIT staff introduced to the newly grads the great demand for talents in China and job opportunities that require Chinese language competence. Many applicants expressed that learning Chinese would indeed give them an edge on job market.

Career fairs, which serve as bridge between employers and university graduates, is the weather vane of future development of higher education institutes, given that the requirements on talents will influence students judgement, especially their choice of majors or courses. According to the responses from this time's career fair, Confucius Institute believe there will be more and more students eager to embrace gladly Chinese language and traditional Chinese culture.

What's more, there were also enquires about China Trip, STARTALK and other programs during the event.
