

Chinese Corner - Chinese Traditional Philosophical Traits

On Jan. 24, 2018, Confucius Institute at Troy University (CIT) held a lecture entitled "Chinese Traditional Philosophical Traits". The lecturer was the visiting scholar, Mr. Zhixin Chen. First, he briefly introduced the four stages of development of traditional Chinese philosophy. Then, Mr. Chen focused on the ways of thinking and discourse traits of Chinese traditional philosophy. Mr. Chen focused on explaining Confucian "benevolence" and Taoism's "non-action". The audience was amazed at the profound history of Chinese traditional philosophy. Meanwhile, Mr. Chen also made a more detailed comparison between Chinese and Western philosophies. After the lecture, Mr. Chen also answered some of the audience's questions, so that everyone could have a deeper understanding of Chinese traditional philosophy. The entire lecture was rich in content and the atmosphere was very lively.
